A notification on our front page announces that Lady Des'Voux will be unable to receive visitors at Government House on Monday next. At noon yesterday salutes were fired in henour of the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, and the men-of-war in harbour were decorated. We would remind our readers of the performance to be given this evening by the Choral

The London people mistook the meaning and thought the offer was for £100,000, £50,000 of which was to be for working. capital. On this misapprehension being corrected they declined the offer. Apparently they would have taken a half share at £100,000, £50,000 in cash and £50,000 for working. It is considered probable that the Company will soon get much more for its property, now that the attention of London has been directed to it. The new capi-

HONGKONG JOCKEY CLUB RAC MEETING. 1889.

THIRD DAY, 22nd February.

The third day opened with anything bu bright prospects as regards the weather. looked very dark and threatening in the early morning, and just before the first race was run, a heavy shower of rain fell. Luckily, however, by the time a start was made the rain ceased, and although the day was not quite so bright as its predecessors, it cleared up wonderfully as the day wore on. Owing to the threatening state of the weather, however, the attendance was not so good for the first two races Mr. J. D. Humphreys's Victory, 11st. 11b. ... as on previous days, but as the rain kept off and the weather brightened, large numbers began Mr. John Peel's Vandetta, 10st. 12lbs.... to arrive on the scene, and during the after noon the attendance was up to the average Mr. John Peel's Bandsman, 11st. 111bs. of the first two days. The racing was quite as good as on the opening days, and this meeting will certainly rank, as predicted, as the most successful the Jockey Club has ever held. As regard races, the third day contributed : quots to the surprises which the meeting has in the Champions, which after Pao Bhing's persafe thing for him, but Orlando, whom he defeated over the same course on that occasion, won this event with comparative case. The "Ladies" Purse" was, as usual, well contested, and was won by Hotepur, Mr. Reynell The purse was presented to the lucky jookey in the Grand- Stand, immediately after the race, by Miss Ryrie. Mr. John Peel Mr. J. D. Humphreys's Victor, 11st. 11b carrying off no less than four races. Messre-Darius, Pogose, Buxey, Humphreys, and Fraser-Smith were each credited with one. Mr Reynell heads the successful jockeys with three wins, Mr. Pond follows with two, and Mesara. Sassoon, Ker, Hough and Maclean had each one. During the day the Band and Pipers of the 91st Regiment played the following selections:-

BAND. Lancers..... The Old Guard...... Crook Ostlere. Wonnchunken God save the Queen. . PIPERS. Strathspey "The Back of the Change House." Loch Tay Side. Roel "Loch Tay Side."

March "The Brace o' Mar."

March "Glengarrys March."

Appended are the results of the races:-The BROKERS' CUP; presented, a forced entr. of $5 each for all entered subscription griffing of this season, 1883-9; 70 per cent. of the entrance money to go to the second, and 30 per cent to the third pony; weight for inches previous winners, 71bs. extra; penalties acoumulative, One mile.

INSTRUCTION OF THE DEAFIN CHINA.

What are the prespects for the instruction of the deaf in China? Very hopeful, I think. The matters relating to it at Shanghai at present date are, in a few of its features, as follows :- A gentlemen at his home in Greenock, Scotland, nineteen years ago, became interested in the deaf of that city and determined that if he could teach them nothing, they could at least be his teacher of their sign language. It was not long before he was able to converse with the deaf in the sign and manual systems, and engaged what leisure he could get in doing evangelistic work

After coming to China he lost these opportunities for intercourse with the deaf, but through a strange providence, he has not been allowed to forget this helpless class. During a riot in the French Concession in Shanghai many years ago, while defending the house of a missionary lady, he was knocked senseless on the street, and when rescued, found that the dram of one of his ears was ruptured. This apparent misfortune has kept him alive to the interests of those slike afflicted as nothing else would have dons. As he does not speak Chinese, ho has secured a native teacher or an evangelist for him, while he attends to his profession, also using his mother English in meeting the foreign sailors. He has from the man employed by him learned of deaf children in the region about Hongkew, a part of his duties as an evangelist being to visit the families of the deaf. The subject is being canvassed by letter and personal interviews with other friends of the deaf, and now it is expected that a native hou-e will be rented and pupils gathered in for instruction.

Will those who have information to impart which would bear upon subjects suggested the helpless condition of the deaf boys of China please sit down, while the subject is in mind, and write it out for the benefit of the cause of Chinese. deat. An educated deaf gentleman estimated that this Empire must have at least 200,000 deaf-mutes to be taught

The information wanted covers such questions as a method for "spelling" Chinese characters with the hands, what apparatus to be used in school and where obtained the same about instruments to aid those too hard of hearing to have learned to talk, and every fact about cures, methods of teaching the science in books, and Hongkony Hotel Company's Shares-$170 per the trades to support life which may have come to your knowledge.

These things if sent to Mr. D. Cranston, care of Farnham and Co., Broadway, Shanghai, China, will be of very great service to the cause. If those able to translate such information into Chinese would do so the publication would be a great benefit. The writer's address (always without title please) is J. Crossett o/o .U. S. Consulate, February 12, 1889.

"The theory is held by Prof. Mendeleef, says Iron, "that petroleum is produced by water, which penetrates the earth's crust, re comes in contact with glowing carbides of metals, especially those of iron. The water is decomposed into, its constituent gases, the oxygen uniting with the iron, while the bydrogen takes up the carbon, and ascends to a higher region; where part of it is condensed into mineral oil and part remains as natural gas, to escape whenever and wherever it can find an outlet. If this assumption is correct, and a sufficient store of metallic carbides is contained in the earth's interior, petroleum may be found almost indefinitely, and yield a supply of fuel long after TTATION coal has become exhausted. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications, To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:— Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Shanghai, will load as above and will have Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the virious applications and equivalents of different ords which have one general morning. Of those examples this work contains more than five times as attained, and dispensing with those vast margins

many as any other Dictionary hitheric pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

AUTHOR OF MEHILAH," "COURT ROYAL," "JOHR HEREING," "THE GAVEROCKS." &C. Now Virst Published. CHAPTER VII. TAKING POSSESSION.

The valley of the Keld, for many miles above and below Morgatrovd presented a piteous

ed hulls amidst shallow largoons, and were inaccessible, their fires extinguished their mechanism arrested, their stores spoiled. The houses in the "folds" were deserted, or wore being cleared of their inhabitants.* From the windows of some of these houses men and women were leading and shouting for help. They had been caught by the water, which invaded the lower storey, locally called the "ha'ase." when asleen in the bedrooms overhead, and now, hungry and cold and imprisoned, they clamoured for release. Boats were scarce. Such as had. been possessed by manufacturers and others had been kept by the river, and these had been broken from their moorings and carried away. Rafts were extemporised out of doors and planks; and as the water was shallow and still in the folds, they served better than keels. One old woman had got into a " peggy " tub and launched herself in it, to get stranded in the midst of a wide expanse of water, and from her vessel

Not many lives, apparently, had been lost in sit at my post, keep my hand on the strong box yesterday from home." the parish of Mergatroyd. Mr. Pennycome- and the bureau." quick was missing, and the man at the looks with his wife had not been seen, and their cottage was still inaccessible. But great mischief had been wrought by the water. Not only had the stores in the mills been damaged, and the mathe ocean." chinery injured by water and grit getting into it, and boilers exploded by the shock, but also because the swirl of the torrent had disturbed the subsoil of gravel and undermined the walls Fissures formed with explosions like the report of guns; one chimney that had leaned before was now so inclined and overbalanced that its fall was inevitable, and was hourly expected. All the gas jots fed from the main that descended into the valley were extinguished, and it was apparent that the rush of water had ploughed up the ground to the depths of the main, and had ruptured it. Walls that had run across the direction of the stream had been thrown over the communication between the two sides of the valley was interrupted. It was uncertain whether the bridge wasstill in existence. The railway had been overflowed, and the traffic stopped. The canal banks and locks had suffered so severely that it would be useless for the barges for many months Tidings arrived during the day from the upper portion of the valley, and it appeared that the destruction of life and property had been greatest where the wave burst out from between the contining hills, before it had space in which to spread, and in spreading to distribute its force Heartrending accounts come in, some true, some exaggerated, some false, but all believed.

That night of terror and ruin did not see the roll of death made up. Such catastrophes have far reaching effects. The wet, the exposure the shock, were sure to produce after sickness and succeeding mortality. With ready hospitality, the parsonnes, the inns, the houses of the well-to-do, were thrown open to receive those temporarily homeless, and food, warmth, and plothing were forced upon them. But such as were received felt that they could not protract their stay and burden unduly their bosts, and insisted on returning prematurely to their sodden honses, there to contract rheumatic fevers and inflammations. Twenty years ago, the author of this story wrote an account of such a disaster in a nove the first on which he essayed his pen. Time has rolled away, and like the flood, has buried much; and amongst the things it has swent off and
